STATEHOOD FOR IDAHO

Though Idaho was left out of "the omni bus bill," she is making efforts to secure ad mission as a state, nevertheless. The gov arnor of the territory, acting on his own re-spoursibility, has issued a call for a convena constitution and his action tion to frame a constitution, and its secreties the hearty support of the people. The Boise Statesman reports that the territory is fast filling up with new people, and many are coming with the expectation that many are coming with the experience has a strie government will soon be created "But," says the Stateman the general favor with which the movement is received is not confined to the young men or to the late or rivels in the territory. The most active and enthusiastic supporters of the movement are found among the pioneers, those who came in advance of the railroads and devoted their time and energies to the development of the youthful industries of the territory The Statesman invists and usily that Idaho porsesses every necessary qualifica-fion for statehood. The construction of railroads has brought the territory in direct communication with all sections of the country, and during the past three or four years our development has been marvelous whether we have 125,000 people or 170 0.00 people is not going to figure with congress in the question of our admission. The Majorman aids that the people are organizing both republicans and democrats, in every county and will be una admission under the constitution and will be unanimous for present It is not easy to see how congress can resist their appeal.

COMBINED EFFORT NEEDED

Newspaners received from all parts of the state are agitating the question how the re-specifie counties shall secure their just prortion of the immigration that is pouring into the Pacific Northwest by al. the way of fravel that now terminate here. It is no doubt true that most of these immigrants have been stiracted by documents circulated from the bureaus of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company and have their minds im-pressed with the advantages of ered by the Sound Country and in the farming districts of Eastern Washington The Rorthern has all possible interest in developing the line where its land grant hes and all districts on tiguous to its route that can addits traffic it might be supposed there was pr should be an equal interest in Oregon broad-minded enough to appreciate its future as well as he immediate present but unfortunately it sleeps while the Northern is vigorous v a d mitringly pursuing an oggressive 10 cp in layor of its own especial domain. Let no small proportion is coming direct to Oregon by the Short Line and Southern Parific routes as well as by steamer Irdin California Eo, despite all efforts to the contrary, Ore gon receives a large share of the immigra-tion. Anyone who travels or sees the array als at the hotels here, will find also that han dreds are coming over from Puget ound anxious to find homes in Gregon he Sound region, at dinost of Vestern Wish-ington, is wooded heavily and therefore un inviting to agricultural home seekers be udes, by this time the favorable locations are nearly all taken. The thest lands of Eastern Washington, including the country that can be cultivated without irrigation are by this time claimed, leaving the new comer nothing really attractive within reach unless he is able to buy out some previous locator a claim

When it comes to purchasing land many people will prefer to buy small farms in the Williamette valley or to locate on moocharical lands that can be found down the Columnia and along the coast, if they can understand the matter. At this time no port on of Ore gon offers greater inducements than does Douglas county, in the beautiful Umpqua-valley. The Roseburg Review wants to know how to secure immigration 1 has only to follow the advice of betretary Struble and place a competent agent at Portings, with abundance of printed ma ter to thistripnte to turn people that way. Lands are reasonably low in price there, and there is no rea on why Douglas county should not be closely settled

All the counties east and west should se All the counties east and west should secure a competent agent to work for them through spring summer and full and it would be a good plan to have a general agent, representing all parts of our state, located on the line of beth roads in falsho to distribute printed matter in the interest of all parts of the state. It will not require a great deal of means to do all that is possible to attract immigration. Eastern Oregon can get along with one agent on the Northern, another on the Short Line and another at Portland, and would soon see practical at Portland, and would soon see practical results. It is hardly necessary to work up immigration for the Williamette as it has such possibilities and attractions that its different counties will soon be thuckly settled What is needed is combined effort. The bureau of immigration here is duing all in its power, and is wholly supported by the liberality of this city.

Its means are limited, of course, and it cannot do all it would gladly do to advance the interests of different sections. It can be of great use in supplementing the efforts of different sections or counties, and all the efforts made by the counties will be stremuously aided by the Portland office. No time should be lost in making such efforts as will bring Oregon interests to the front, so that all its unrivaled advantages shall be krown to the worldh

What is the world's experience with re-form schools? California is said to have tried the experiment and came out $200 000 loser, with only an empty building on its hands, as no youthful enlyrits could be found. The plea is made that men will not convect a neighbor's child of crime, and con-viction must precede incarceration. Our board that has the matter in hand should study the matter up thoroughly before they commence operations though their duties are defined so they have no recourse but to carry out the law. The whole conduct of trials in cases of youth should be changed from that given old commasks and they should not be held amenable in the same manner. New York has reformatory inst. tntions and so have other cities and coun tries besides the United States. should be taken from these and their experience made use of to perfect the manage ment of our school. In Rhode Island there has been a singular political contest. Withdrawal of prohibit ionists from the republican party through anger at that party because its represent atives, who were a majority of the legisla-ture did not vote against submission of a resolution to repeal the prohibition amend ment gave the democrate a plurality on clate officers and a plurality of the members of the legislature in the general election held early this month. But the constitution of the state requires a majority to elect, and as the election had failed in the case of about twents two members of the legislature there have been repeated trials since to elect these members till at last the republicans have e ceted a sufficient number to give them a majority on joint ballot and therefore when the legislature meets that body will elect regulation state officers. Newport voted three times before the members were elected. The house is still democratic, but the senate is republican by a majority larger than the

EASTER STYLES.

Ladies desiring to give orders for Bonnets or Hats, to be delivreed before Easter, will have to favors us with their commissions early in the wock, as we are already crowded with orders. Miss Ida Silvermah and her regular corps of assistants, with an extra force engaged for the occasion, are jushing the work on Easter orders as much as possible consistent with first-class work. We do not care to turn out work on the spur of the moment, and on account of undue haste do an injustice to both our patrons and ourselves. We have earned the reputation of producing the most elegant goods of any house in the line, and it is our aim to mainfain not only the high standard of our goods, but the perfection of our workmanship. In order to do this we must ask our friends to give us as much time as possible in which to execute their orders.

Those desting the imported article can be accommodated, as we have a very handsome line of the very latest imported French Hats and Bonnets, which we offer at reasonable prices. When we say reasonable we mean only reasonable, as applied to French Millinery.

We would respectfully suggest that if there be any Fortland ladies who have not visited our Millinery Parlors thus Spring, that they should take advantage of our display of EASTER STYLES the coming week and pay our establishment a visit, where they can inspect the most elegant and exclusive line of Millinery ever imported on the Coast.

Our lines for the Spring Season 'are all in and we are ready for business in this department. We would invite special attention to our stock of—

The year is 8 is called the bonanza year for wheat production in California, as the total product was estimated at 1,850 000 tons or 55 000 000 bushels. That year the acreage was large and the product large. There has been nothing to equal it since but the estimates made by experts in the trade all in dicate that 1880 will equal if not surpass the yield and acreage of 1880. No doubt the yield for Oregon will exceed that of California, sere for sore, and the acreage is probably larger than usual as this is the crop year in the upper country. The old numbered years are accepted all through the Inland Empire as bearing seasons, and thas come to be a custom to follow their wheat lands on the even numbered year and sow to harvest the crop on the odd numbers. Through Washington territory the area sown to grain considerably excels that of any former year, and as the season promise to be favorable and the yield large per acre it is probable that the total of when crop on the I acidic coast will aggregate nearly f not 100 000,000 bushels, an enormous outcome for a section that twenty years ago was not practically known as a wheat producing region.

It will be a matter of interest to note the comparative yield of the different sections and we shall be surprised if the vea practice in the Earlie Northwest does no exceed largely that of all forms. Also to note the largely that of al forma. Also to note the computative yield of the trajons sawt and west of the Cascades. arion and the industries of the country is cities and towns now demand a special in of products more profitable to supply. One feature of the production of the present year in California is that beam are planted more generally and polatices much less as the demand for the one was good are hardly well supplied, while polatices were over produced and are now of little value California has always produced beams in great quantity and found it profitable. This pring some have plowed under growing wheat and planted beams instead. One tuning was to beams is that they do not spoil like vegetables, and can be shipped on long for agree. Oregon furmers do not seem to grow beams as a crop with any regularity, and it is a question The Oregonal to seed already and the case elsewhere. It is not desirable for Oregon to send abroad for a steple of common to and abroad for a steple of common to fit can be produced well here. If has grow well in California they should make a good crop cast of the Cascades, where the

If he wanted money the wirds the receipt would be security for it and the stock of the creamery will answer the same and for it may be that at harvest time a small loan will be satisfactory at a farmer should soon be able to handle him self without resorting to such resources. As to wheat the lesson tanght last autumn should unswer a long time. Prices were up and the stituation did not warrant a behad that they could go very high. Those who could have sold at top prices Low grave because interest included, they are out 10 to it cents a bushel. The convenience and use of the money would have counted for some thing more but they had sold low for so long that they would not listen to reason and suffer for it.

When a man has cattle, and it is spring, he can carry them over as well as other stock and sell when it suits him. There are some items that will not bear he ding too long, or too much of one thing. As a general rule the man who has sold he grain early has item fortunite. Look back twenty years and the same is easily proved true. It has been demonstrated that the barley grown in the Upper Columbia region possesses peculiar excellence and cumisfally the best Canadian that has grown to be considered the best raised on the continent. Shipments made three or four years ago showed that the barley grown east of the Casaddes was of the best quality, and answered the best purposes, and commanded a fair price. Here is a product that enters largely into trade and commerce, and that deserves to be tested, so far as is necessary to decide whether it will pay to ship to Western cities.

to decide whether it will pay to ship to West-ern cities.

It is claimed by our farmers that they find little profit, in their labors, and that prices are generally low. As to wheat, the lesson taught last autumn should answer a long time. Prices were up, and the situation did not warrant a belief that they could go very high. Those who could have sold at top prices now grieve because, interest included, they are out 10 to 15 cents a bushel. The convenience and use of the money would have counted for something more, but they had sold low for so long that they would not listen to reason and suffer for it.

When a man has cattle, and it is spring, he can carry them over as well as other eries, with cold storage attached, which is and the same is easily proved true. Good judgment may come in at times, but careful comparison of facts and markets is necessary, and the average man is not equal to that. I wothinds of the time the man who sold wheat beidge the end of October came out ahead of the one who held until spring. Polatoes are another crop with like experience, and it is far more risky to hold them than to hold grain in a warchouse. The farmer should be a business man, and enderstand himself well. If there is an intelligent grange to work with it should answer a purpose by studying and comparing facts sind estimating results. At least a grange, or a state grange that has its foreign correspondents should be able to secure all the best commercial journals and have men at command who can read them and judge from them. Everybody but the speculator in bread stuffs wishes to see the farmer do well, for the more prosperous he is the more prosperous is the nation. To have the foreign speculator get his wheat at low figures helps no one on this side of the water.

The time should have come by now, when the farming world, with all its apparent progress, should have rone intuitions that will uphold its judgment and teach it the brades of ordinary business.

To some people a cow is a cow and they magne because they have a certain nummagne tecause they have a certain number of cow beasts they are carrying on a dury.

Last season the Dairyman made up a so-called "cow census," that took up a certain number of dairies and gave the result of their work the cost of their food, and all foots.

overlooked in the farmer's estimate, but really should be counted.

Of the total number of dairies there were 16 who reported 246 cows, making an average of 15.7 per cent. of the whole, as paying $22 annual profit; 30 dairies reported 634 cows, 41.7 per cent. of the total, that averaged $28 41 annual profit; 29 dairies had 485 cows, forming 30 8 per cent. of the whole, that earned $39 21 snual profit; 10 dairies had 172 cows, 11 per cent. of all, that averaged $41 49 profit.

To sum it un differently, a little over half the cows earned $26 18; seven-eighths of all carned $31 22, and the other eighth earned $32 29. The figures were made by Dr. Peter Collier, who is one of the leading minds in the dairy business. He considers these figures runous and due to insufficient prices and poor management. They too often just keep the cow in condition through the winter, instead of making ner a source of profit by feeding her richly and abundantly, so that she can make golden butter that will bring a gilt-edged price. Another requisite is a good breed of milkers and carriedly selected animals that will make a lurge quantity of good butter or cheese.

Dr. Collier makes another table, bised on amount of grain fed the cows in different dairies, and finds that the carmings correspond with the grain rution used. Four herds averaged $19 39 carnings, and fed grain valued at $1.43.

The importance of these figures lies in this, that they apply to making beet as well us to making butter and cheese. Feeding grain paud very largely, as the cows that had $15 worth of grain fed them paid over $60 profit ever that earned by the cows that were fed only $143 of grain. The grain fed paid over $90 per cent, profit; besides that, the value of manure was largely increased by that means, which is an important factor in the economy of farm management.

The above is a rude summary of really important estimates that have direct and useful bearing on the dairy business. The facts constantly brought to light show the need of grading up stock, for in the dairy good grades equal the practical value of full bloods. First, good stock; then good care and good feed, and good butter and cheese come as a matter of course.

A well known wig-maker was stanling at Broad and Walnut streets talking to a Times reporter.

"Do you see that team?" said the wig-maker. "Well, do you see what beautifut flowing tails they're got? They're bogns."

The little wig-maker laughed aloud and then said: 'I made those tails. I make tails for a good many stylish horses. You know that a horse without a handsome tail isn't handsome at all. He may have a beautiful mane and hold his head high and stamp and prance and bite his fit, showing all the traits of a full blooded animal, but if he harn't got a long, flowing tail all the other characteristics go for nothing.

"There are a great many stylish stoppers driven in the park every day that sweep the ground. The horses get used to the false tails ust as a man becomes accustomed to wearing a wig. The false tails are fastened on to the horse's own tail so nicely that you can't detect the deception. The tails don't have to be removed at might when the horse is put in his stall. The bogus tails can be washed and brushed and combed on the horse just as of him.

"The logues tails cost from $10 to $15. I generally make a pair for $25. They will last as long as the horse. I buy dead horses' tails and menes just as I buy buman hair. The practice of docking horses' tails is chored horse, and then continued: "The practice if dying out; but a horse's tail is to clipit about an tich once a month "—Philadelphia Time.

WHER TO BOW CLOVES.

An Illinois correspondent of an exchange, in reply to the question when to sow clover, gives his own experience. He says: "A failure to get a catch is delay for another year at least. Timothy seed may be sown any time during this month or later on, but with me clover seed sown this month, and very often during March—particularly in the forepart of March—in most years I consider, from hearly forty years' experience, very risky. I have found out that It takes the boulde—by which I mean the stage when it has but two leaves of an oval shape—but when the third leaf makes its appearance I generally consider it safe. I profer sowing failer upon the soil on which I have sown any oats. After sowing the clover seed drag a brush or a harrow—if not too large or weighty—crossing from the way you harrow will be of no benefit in a molet spring but still is no detriment to it. It is of much importance in a dry spring when little ran will moisten the top of the soil sufficient for seed to germinate. I have a most excellent left research and the server is a dry spring when the later the top of the soil sufficient for seed to germinate. I have a most excellent left research and row has type and your last spring as in reply to the question when to sow clover, gives his own experience. He says: "A failure to get a catch is delay for another year at least. Timothy seed may be sown any time during this month or later on, but with me always and some this seed to be a seed of the seed year at least. Timothy seed may be sown any time during this month or late on, but with me clover seed sown this month, and very often during March—particularly in the forepart of March—in most years! consider, from nearly forly years' experience, very risky. I have found out that it takes but little treezing to kill clover when in the double—by which I mean the stage when it has but two leaves of an oval shape—but when the third leaf makes its appearance! generally consider it sale. I profer sowing mine (on account of failure of wheat to make a paying crop) with oats, and I always, if possible, sow it before a rain has fallen upon the soil on which I have sown my oats. After sowing the clover seed drag a brush or a harrow—if not too large or weighty—crossing from the way you harrow in the oats. I will admit that brushing or harrowing will be of no benefit in a moist spring but still is no detriment to it. It is of much importance in a dry spring when little rain will moisten the top of the soil sufficient for seed to germinate. I have a most excellent thirty-nore field sown last spring as above described, and a better stand! certainly could not wish. The seed that M. B. W. sowed in the wind after or when frost was coming out no doubt was burried sufficient to germinate during the first warm spell and perished afferward by subsequent freezing, whereas that sowed aboutken days itser, when soil had dried and crocked open, lay there until moistened by rain sufficient to sprout and all danger of severe freeze enough to kill it part. The crnexed surface to sprout and all danger of severe freeze enough to kill it past. The cracked surface probably served in a measure the purpose of the brush or harrow."

THE LEAN HORSE.

The owner of a horse complains that while his horse eats ten quarts of oats he is not filled out, and E. W. Stewart very train says -and strikes a very important point, too-that not half of the horses thoroughly mas-ticate oats. Let his oats be ground and then that not hall of the lorses throughly masticate outs. Let his oats be ground and then make up his ration us follows: Seven pounds ground oats four pounds frie bran, one pound linseed meal. Let this be well mixed together dry. A part of his hay should be run through a cutter to mix this ground feed with. The twelve pounds ground feed should be mixed with six pounds out hay, without wetting, and the hor-s will cat the bay with the ground feed, although all is dry. This ground feed and out hay should be given morning and evening, and a little long hay at noon. The man does not mention the age or weight of his horse, or how much he is ridden per day.
Ten quarts outs is a small ration if the horse is 1600 to 1100 pounds weight and is used much. The combination here given will be likely to give him a start in filing up and rounding out his form. After feeding this for a few weeksit will probably he necessary to add another pound of linseed meal.
Feeding it dry will cause better mistication and better dijection. The oil meal will cleanse and soothe digestive organs and gives a steek coat. This is plendid advice.— Western Rural.

CAT CULTURE.

A Kansas farmer has been writing his experience of out-growing in an exchange, and having given the subject considerable thought, his conclusions are worth some-thing. He says that onts are a profitable thing. He says that onts are a prohiable crop to raise, that with good seed and proper cultivation they will never be a total fullure; that the best manner to put them in is either on fall plowing or clean corn ground, and then with a drill, and not less than two bushels of seed per acre—two and one-half is better. Cultivating them in is next best way, if ground is clean. If ground is foul, plowing them in shallow and a favorable spring will bring a good crop. Broadcast seeding and harrowing them in is the poorest way to put them in. I are not satisfied which is the better seed. I have had about equal success with the red Texas and the black winter outs both; either are much better than the white oats. Be sure to put on pleuty of seed. Of the bluck oats, from one and one-half to two bushels per acre, and of the red Texas, two to two and one-half bushel per acre less can safely be used, with a drill than when sowing broadcast, lifty experience has all been on bottom or second bottom land. I know of equally as successful experience on upland. Some farmers do not make a success of farming in Osborne country, all oan." crop to raise, that with good seed and proper the coming apring crop of pigs depend largely on the condition and care of the sows in ferrow, and he wishes to protest against the prevailing idea that in order to produce a strong, healthy litter of rigs the sow should be kept in a thir con dition. This is a serious mistake, and is the cause of nauch disease among pigs. Eight or ten pigs are more than a sow can raise properly if she is too thin at farrowing time, as the pigs must have more neurishment than can be furnished from the food consumed by the sow, for she cannot ent enough to develop her pigs; but if in proper condition she has a certain amount of flesh to draw upon, and the best possible growth. Many persons complian of indifferent success in attempting to raise pigsifrom fat sows. While we want them in good flesh, we do not want them fat; but we do not think there is much danger of farmers feeding too much outs, brain or middlings to sows in farrow, as feed of this kind makes a fine growth of flesh and muscle—elements; so necessary to the sow in order that she may care properly for her young. In our experience the heat pigs have been raised by the sows in the first condition, and we are convinced that more sows are injured by feeding too little than too much.

The Farmer's Review is exactly right in the above stateme it. It will not do to have sows excessively fat, but as between quite fat and can poor, we shoulc prefer the former. As a rule the poor hog is other a sick hog or a starved hog; and neither is a condition may source. be kept in a thin cor dition. This is a serious mistake, and is the cause of much disease

HOW HORSES ARE MADE BALKY.

It is almost always the fault of a man, and not of the horse, if one becomes balky. These suggestions from the National Stockman on that subject are worth reading and remembering. It says if a horse shows signs of stubbornness or contranuess, just get mad yourself, and you can rest assured you are næd for the rest of the day as long as you want to keep it up. Horses, like men, are generally set in their ways, and when a horse with only moderate sense gots into trouble with a man with only moderate sense, the two generally have a "monkey and parrot time" from morning till night. Well-bred horses are seldom stubborn and unruly, and in this respect there is a striking analogy between horses are a men. Horses doctle, obedient and tractable in the hands of one man, are victous and unruly in the hands of another. The reason is the one knows how to manage them, the other does not. Bad dispositions are generally the result of bad handling. A few slaps and jerks, accompaned by a little samp talk or a few fierce yells, get the most gentle horse clear beside binuself and ready to worry and fret the remander of the day. The more quiet and stendy you keep your horses the better it will be for them, yourself and all concerned.

so abundant there us to drown out Coluse county what to the extent that the losses are placed at 30,000 tons, or a million hushels. It is singular that while California rams have been unusually heavy, rains in Oregon, where the average rainfall has always been great, are much below average. The year 1889 is called the bonanza year for wheat production in California, as the total production in California, as the total production in California, as the total product was estimated at 1,680,000 tons or 55,000,000 bushels. That year the acreage was large and the product large. There has been nothing to equal it since, but the estimates made by experts in the trade all indicate that 1889 will equal if not surpass the yield and acreage of 1880. With few exceptions prospects are excellent and grain is nearing maturity.

No doubt the yield for Oregon will exceed that of California, acre for acre, and the acreage is probably larger than usual as this is the crop year in the upper country. The odd numbered years are accepted all through the Inland Empire as bearing seasons, and it has come to be a custom to follow their wheat lands on the even numbered year and sow to harvest the crop on the odd numbers. Through Washington territory the area sown to grain considerably excels that of any former year, and as the season promises to be favorable and the yield large per acre, its probable that the total of wheat crop on the l'acide coast will segregate nearly if not 100,000,000 bushels, and PARIS CO. for a section that twenty years ago was not practically known as a wheat producing region.

It will be a matter of interest to note the comparative yield of the different sections, and we shall be surprised if the yield perfect the Pacific Northwest does not exceed largely that of California. Also, to note the comparative yield of the regions east and west of the Cascades. Western Oregon does not produce wheat so generally as it did years ago, for the farming here is becoming more and more adapted to circumstances, and stock raising, dairying, gardoning and fruit growing divide the attention of producers. The whole coast is undergoing the natural change from first principles of production to the production of special crops suited to localities and changing conditions of population and the industries of the country. Its cities and towns now demand a special line of products more profitable to supply. One feature of the production of the present year in California is that beans are planted more generally and potatoes much less, as the demand for the one was good and hardly well supplied, while potatoes were over-produced and are now of little value. (California has always produced beans in great quantity, and found it profitable. This spring some have plowed under growing wheat and planted beans instead. One thing as to beans is that they do not spoil like vegetables, and can be shipped on long voyages. Oregon farmers do not seem to grow beans as a crop with any regularity, and it is a question The December has been for oregon to send abroad for a staple of common use if each of the content of the supple of common use if the supple of the supple of common use if the supple of the supple of send abroad for a staple of common use if the supple of the supple of the grow of the grow of the grow of the supple of common use if the supple of the supple of the grow of the grow of the supple of common use if the supple of the supple of the grow of the grow of the supple of the grow of the grow of the supple of the supple
